

LAMBORGHINI AVENTADOR SV ROADSTER

2016 Lamborghini Aventador SV Roadster with the 6.5L V12 producing 750 bhp

The Lamborghini Aventador is a mid-engine sports car produced by the Italian automotive manufacturer Lamborghini. In keeping with Lamborghini tradition, the Aventador is named after a Spanish fighting bull that fought in Zaragoza, Aragón, in 1993. The Aventador is the successor for the Murciélago and was made by hand in Sant'Agata Bolognese, Italy.

The Lamborghini Aventador SuperVeloce LP 750-4 Roadster was unveiled at the 2015 Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance. It featured a compact two-piece carbon fibre hardtop that can be stored in the trunk like the standard roadster. Numerous weight-saving measures have lowered the Roadster's weight to 1,575 kg, a figure that makes it 50 kg (110 lb) lighter than the standard roadster. Deliveries began in the first quarter of 2016 and production was limited to 500 units. The car also features improved aerodynamics, with downforce increased by 180% as compared to the standard Aventador coupé. Notable aerodynamic upgrades are a revised front splitter and a rear diffuser along with a fixed CFRP rear wing. The car's driving dynamics have also been upgraded, featuring new enhanced electronic steering for superior maneuverability at high speeds, magnetic pushrod suspension for superior handling, and chassis improvements to increase rigidity. Did you know that the Aventador Super Veloce was only a few seconds off the million-dollar Porsche 918 Spyder around the Nurburgring?

In our book the Roadster SV edges the Coupe SV because, with the roof removed, it ups the intensity of everything it does, but still handles with a precision you don't expect. It's still a big mid-engined 740bhp supercar, and for that reason demands respect. But infuriating noddin'-dog automated manual gearbox aside it's more accommodating to drive than you'd imagine. And even though it is older than the latest SVJ model, we believe that this SV is the one to have thanks to its better exhaust system and more raw looks. Besides that there are only 500 examples of the SV roadster, 300 less than the SVJ Roadster.

The example which we are presenting here today is finished in a striking shade of Ad Personam Rosso Efesto. Most SV's are painted in Rosso Bia which is the launch colour for this model, but only a handful of them are painted in Rosso Efesto. Which makes her extra rare. She was configured by her first and only owner at Lamborghini Brussels, who has taken good care of her ever since. The front is protected with a special paint protection film, which keeps her special paint protected from rocks and scratches. She has also been meticulously detailed meaning that she is in like-new condition. A rare and unique feature is that she wears the big SV logo which has been painted. It is not a sticker. With all of her exterior carbon fibre she does feel and look like a true supercar. Inside you will find a raw interior, which is as impressive as her exterior. The first thing that will catch your eye is the full naked carbon fibre door with the red leather strap as a handle. And don't look for the carpets, as the SV does not have them to save weight. Contrary to other SV's, this one comes with the more comfortable sports seats which are heated, electric and are finished in black alcantara with contrasting red stitching to complement her Ad Personam paint. For extra comfort (which is something we do not associate with a Lamborghini normally) she has been optioned with a back-up camera to make it less difficult to park her. For more detailed options please get in touch. And her best feature? You can open the rear window to hear her V12 scream, even with the roof installed. Nothing beats the sound of a 6.5L V12... And if you want the full orchestra, there is a two-piece solid carbon fibre roof that pops off and slots neatly in the front boot, leaving room for your favourite piece of A4 paper.

As a nice bonus the original 1:18 scale model is also included.

This Aventador SV Roadster surely is a great example to behold and to drive. From her screaming V12 engine to her amazing styling. What are you waiting for? Get in touch before this once in a lifetime opportunity slips away...
